Note A - Organization and Description of Business

Tradestar Corporation (Company) was incorporated as Western Research and Manufacturing Company under the laws of the State of Utah on March 22, 1966 as a manufacturing concern. Western Research and Manufacturing was inactive from 1977 to March 1980 when it was granted a Discharge in Bankruptcy. The Company was reactivated in March 1980 by the acquisition of all of the assets of MRDB Investments, a partnership, after which acquisition its name changed to Tierra Energy Corporation. The Company then began to engage in the oil and gas exploration and development business. In 1982, the Company completed a domiciliary merger to change its state of incorporation to Oklahoma, to reduce the par value of its shares of common stock and to adopt new Articles of Incorporation and corporate by-laws. In 1985, the Company changed its name to Tradestar Corporation.

In February 1987, the Company exchanged all of its assets for common stock in a company then known as "Snow Tiger, Inc." and the assumption of all liabilities. The Company then declared a property dividend to its shareholders and distributed 100% of its holdings in Snow Tiger, Inc. to the Company's shareholders.

The Company has had no significant operations, assets or liabilities from 1987 through 2000. Accordingly, the Company was dependent upon the management and/or significant shareholders to provide sufficient working capital to preserve the integrity of the corporate entity during this phase.

On May 8, 1998, at the Company's Annual Meeting of Shareholders, a 15 for 1 reverse stock split was approved, effective as of that date. All amounts in the accompanying financial statements reflect the effect of this reverse split as of the first day of the first period presented herein.

On May 15, 1998, the Company amended its Articles of Incorporation to modify the Company's capital structure to authorize the issuance of up to 100,000,000 shares of $0.001 par value common stock from the previously authorized 20,000,000 share of $0.01 par value common stock. No change was made to the authorized amounts and par value of the Company's Preferred Stock. The effect of this transaction had been reflected in the accompanying financial statements during the period in which the change was effective.

On August 3, 1998, the Company issued an aggregate approximate 32,826,925 post 15 for 1 reverse split shares of restricted, unregistered common stock to an individual in anticipation of a pending business transaction to recapitalize the Company through the contribution of various operating assets. These shares were issued pursuant to an oral stock subscription agreement by and between the individual and the Company. On September 4, 1998, the individual funded the stock subscription agreement with the opening of a cash account in the Company's name. Subsequently, all of the stock was acquired by a group of individuals.

In 2000 the Company acquired certain oil and gas leases that the Company operated until 2002. The Company disposed of all of its leases at a loss in 2002.

In 2004, control of the Company was transferred to a group who sought to purchase leases and develop oil and gas properties. As part of the consideration the note receivable, bank debt, and prior stockholder's loans were forgiven and assumed by the former controlling group.

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements and the reported amounts of revenues and expenses during the reporting period. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

Note B - Summary of Significant Account Policies

For Statement of Cash Flows purposes, the Company considers all cash on hand and in banks, including accounts in book overdraft positions, certificates of deposit and other highly-liquid investments with maturities of three months or less, when purchased, to be cash and cash equivalents.

Note C - Common Stock Transactions

On February 2, 1998, the Company issued 400,000 post-reverse split shares (6,000,000 pre-reverse split shares) of restricted, unregistered common stock to an individual, who was also a then officer and director of the Company. This transaction was entered into to facilitate the acquisition of or merger with a privately-owned corporation. No acquisition or merger activities were completed as a result of these efforts. This transaction was valued at approximately $60,000.00 which approximated the fair value of the services provided.

On August 3, 1998, the Company issued an aggregate approximate 32,826,925 post-reverse split shares of restricted, unregistered common stock to an individual for $100,000 in anticipation of a pending business transaction whereby the Company would recapitalize through the contribution of various operating assets owned or controlled by this individual. These shares were issued in August 1998, pursuant to an oral stock subscription agreement by and between the individual and the Company. On September 4, 1998, the individual funded the stock subscription agreement with the opening of a cash account in the Company's name.

In May 2004 control of the Company was transferred to a group who sought to develop oil and gas properties. As a result the Company issued 30,770,251 shares of stock for services and cash.

Note D - Producing Properties

During the last quarter of 2004 the Company purchased and worked over certain oil and gas leases. These leases were put on line in January 2005.

Note E - Method of Accounting

Note E - Method of Accounting

For financial reporting, revenues are recognized when earned and costs are recognized when incurred.

Note F - Long-Lived Assets

Property and equipment are stated at cost. Depreciation and depletion commences once the assets have been placed in service and is computed using the straight-line method over the estimated useful lives of the assets.
